BROOKLYN LOSES ASSEMBLY BALL

Big Social Function To Be Omitted This Season—Debuts Past and to Come.

Owing to the disturbed conditions of the times, by which practically everybody is in some measure affected, the committee of the Assembly Ball has decided to omit that function this season. The omission of the ball is undoubtedly cause for regret, as no matter how numerous the winter entertainments may be not one can fill the peculiar place the Assembly holds in the social calendar. Its significance is generally recognized by Brooklynites, and it invariably brought back former Brooklyn people who now are seldom seen at a general entertainment on this side of the river. Before reaching its decision the committee conferred with the patronesses and many of the subscribers, but it was finally deemed best to let this season pass without its distinguishing event.

A noteworthy addition to the holiday entertaining will be the one which Mrs. War Gibbs is to give for her daughter, Miss Althea Gibb, Friday evening, January 8, at the Heights Casino. At that time Mrs. Gibb will have as her guest Miss Margaret Meyer, of London, who is to pass this winter in America, with old friends of her mother, formerly Miss Katharine Lawrence, of Boston, and one of Mrs. Gibb's bridesmaids more than twenty years ago. Miss Meyer, whose father is Brigadier-General David Mercer, of the Royal Marines, is to spend January with Mrs. Gibb and her daughter.

The dance which Colonel and Mrs. William Cary Sanger gave last evening for their daughter, Miss Mary Sanger, was arranged as a small and early affair. Dancing stopped at midnight, when supper was served, with a single full minute in the three preceding hours. Not a few of the guests belonged to the Manhattan debutante set, when supper was served, Mrs. Sanger down with him several of her friends. There was also a fair display of gold lace, for many of the younger officers from the nearby forts were present. Vases of pink roses and chrysanthemums and palms were used in the decorations. Mrs. Sanger wore a gown of mauve and silver brocade, trimmed with point de Venise lace, and the debutante appeared in pale blue chiffon, edged with white swandown.

Miss Ruth Jenks, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Almet Francis Jenks, was formally introduced to society yesterday afternoon at a large reception. The Jenks home, at 8 Pierrepont st., was simply decorated with greenery, but the flowers received by the debutante filled the receiving rooms. Mrs. Jenks wore a gown of bisque velvet and chiffon, embroidered in gold, and Miss Jenks was frocked in white chiffon and silver. They were assisted in receiving by Miss Helen Hinman, Miss Mary Sanger, Miss Polly Dunlop, Miss Kath-
